Land Acknowledgement

We would like to acknowledge that what is now Colorado includes the lands of the Ute, Arapaho, Cheyenne, Diné (di-NAY), Lakota, Apache, Puebloan nations, and many Tribes, and that the sovereign tribal governments of the Ute Mountain Ute and the Southern Ute Indian Tribes still reside in this state. These tribes are the original stewards of these natural areas. We want to take a moment to honor and respect these original stewards of the environment and their relationship with the land.

What are health and health care disparities?

- Health and health care disparities refer to differences in health and health care between groups that stem from broader inequities.
- There are multiple definitions of health disparities. Healthy People 2020 defines a health disparity as, “a particular type of health difference that is closely linked with social, economic, and/or environmental disadvantage” and notes that disparities, “adversely affect groups of people who have systematically experienced greater obstacles to health based on their racial or ethnic group; religion; socioeconomic status; gender; age; mental health; cognitive, sensory, or physical disability; sexual orientation or gender identity; geographic location; or other characteristics historically linked to discrimination or exclusion.”
- The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) identifies health disparities as, “preventable differences in the burden of disease, injury, violence, or opportunities to achieve optimal health that are experienced by socially disadvantaged populations.”
- A health care disparity typically refers to differences between groups in health insurance coverage, access to and use of care, and quality of care. The terms “health inequality” and “inequity” also are used to refer to disparities.
- Racism, which CDC defines as the structures, policies, practices, and norms that assign value and determine opportunities based on the way people look or the color of their skin, results in conditions that unfairly advantage some and disadvantage others, placing people of color at greater risk for poor health outcomes.

Disparities exist in 6 areas:

According to the 2021 National Health Care Quality and Disparities Report, disparities exist in these six areas:

1. Patient safety
2. Person-centered care
3. Care coordination
4. Effective treatment
5. Healthy living
6. Health care affordability

It is critical to identify the current state of health disparities in these six areas in each Colorado region to appropriately allocate resources to regions with disproportionately poor clinical outcomes for our members.

Providers, caregivers, and stakeholders have voiced the need to have equity-based, quality outcomes data for their region so they may begin to address Colorado's health disparities.

Health Equity Lens

Run each decision through an Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion Lens with the following questions:

- How are people from different underserved groups affected by this issue?
- What does the data tell us? What is missing from the data?
- If this policy is adopted, who is burdened most and who benefits most?
- If this policy is adopted, what are the health inequities, barriers or negative outcomes involved in the problem being examined?
- How can we ensure that this policy results in inclusive and equitable solutions?
- How can those most adversely affected by the issue be actively involved in solving it?
- How will the proposed policy, practice or decision be perceived by each group?
- If funding is involved, how do we ensure equitable distribution of resources across geographic areas?

Additional EDI questions to consider:

- Historically, how has our use of data impacted disenfranchised communities we seek to serve? How does this decision address this?
- What must we do differently to center equity?
